

Hello, Dear Friend,

My name is Umid. I am from Baku. How are you? I hope everything is going well with you. The aim of my letter is to call you to peace. I know that our countries have been in war for many years. Both countries have had victims. I have a question for you. So many losses, so many deaths... For what? This world is for all of humanity. Why should people live as enemies and not as brothers?

Dear neighbor, life is very short, and there will be times when we won't exist. I think we should give up these cold relations, and should call the whole world to peace and stability. This world is for all of us. Even geniuses – like Napoleon, Alexander the Great, and Sultan Suleiman – were not able to become immortal. Why should we be enemies for a piece of land? I think peace will save the world.

I think you also support this idea. I hope that although we are from different nations and cultures, both of us are sure that peace is the only way for regulation of the conflict. It's true that for many years we have heard that you are our enemies, and you have heard that we are your enemies. But I think we should break this stereotype. In my life, I have seen only one Armenian in Romania. I didn't have a chance to have a long talk with him. I wish to talk to you one day and understand what's going on. I want to know your attitude toward us. If there was an opportunity, we could meet in the framework of this program and have a long talk. I am looking forward to the day when you receive this letter. I think everything will get its solution; not only for us, but also for our two nations.

With regards, Azerbaijani peace-lover
